ENDORSEMENT OF MAYOR IS NOT SETTLED
C.G.A. Names Alderman Slate but Leaves School Board Open
Unanimously ratifying the slate chosen by the selection committee and endorsed by the executive, a general meeting of the Civic Government Association held in the Y.M.C.A. on Monday night named Ald. F. A. Keiller, Ald. A. C. Sloan, Captain J. C. Bowen, R. V. Bolam, and Professor A. Rehman as candidates in the forthcoming elections.

That the Civic Government Association will play a large part in the elections is evident from the attendance at last night's meeting and the reports on membership. At the present time the membership is over double what it was last year. A number of members of the executive who have been elected to the board of directors have still to report to the executive.

Plans were laid on Monday night for the meeting of the executive on Monday morning. The majority of the executive will be in charge of the campaign, and it is expected that the executive will be in charge of the campaign, and it is expected that the executive will be in charge of the campaign.

OTTAWA, Nov. 22.—Plans are being made for the election of a new executive for the Civic Government Association on Monday night. The executive will be in charge of the campaign, and it is expected that the executive will be in charge of the campaign.

GIBBS SPRINGS SURPRISE WHEN COUNCIL VOTES

Labor Aldermen Break Final Action on Plebiscite Until Monday
After four hours of heated debate, which at times developed into a series of personalities that threatened to disrupt the meeting, the city council shortly before midnight session in passing the necessary "P.R." resolution for submission to the voters on December 12th. The momentary victory was gained over the stout opposition of the Labor aldermen, and then, when everything was just settling into serenity, one more Alderman Gibbs literally tossed a bomb into the fire.

When it became apparent that the council had passed the resolution, Gibbs rose and said: "I am not a member of this council, and I am not a citizen of this city. I am a laborer, and I am a member of the labor union. I am not a member of this council, and I am not a citizen of this city. I am a laborer, and I am a member of the labor union."

Coke Displaces Much U.S. Coal Through East

OTTAWA, Nov. 22.—Use of substitutes for United States anthracite coal is growing in Canada, and a half ton of such substitutes will be used in Canada during the present season, according to an estimate by Hon. Charles Stewart, minister of mines. In 1925, the aggregate tonnage of anthracite substitutes used in Quebec and Ontario was 60,000 tons. The increase is largely attributed to the use of coke.

Alberta coal, low volatile bituminous coals, British anthracite and by-product coke from the Alberta coal fields, will be used in Canada during the present season, according to an estimate by Hon. Charles Stewart, minister of mines. In 1925, the aggregate tonnage of anthracite substitutes used in Quebec and Ontario was 60,000 tons. The increase is largely attributed to the use of coke.

6,000 PELTS FOR AUCTION AT WINNIPEG

Silver Fox Farmers Have Best Year in History, Is Report
Experiencing their biggest year since the industry was located in Western Canada, fox farmers of Manitoba, Saskatchewan, British Columbia and Alberta, will have about 6,000 pelts, valued at upwards of $1,000,000 to dispose of at the Winnipeg Fur Auction Sale on January 10, according to H. Jewell, general manager of the sale, who with President Max Finkelstein has been in Alberta for the past few days completing arrangements with the Alberta breeders for the shipment of their pelts to Winnipeg.

In the past the majority of the Western Canadian breeders have shipped their pelts to the United States and London, but this year the majority of the breeders have agreed to ship to the Winnipeg Fur Auction Sale. The breeders have also agreed to ship their pelts to the Winnipeg Fur Auction Sale.

ALBERTA CATTLE LEAD

Stress was placed by the University of Alberta made a pretty general survey of the highest winter fair at Toronto. That is a particularly gratifying fact at this time when stock-growing and other branches of mixed farming are suffering through the diversion of attention to wheat growing. If lower cattle are being grown in Alberta than in former times, there are to be found in the province herds which do not take second place in point of quality in any Canadian. It is not without interest to note that conditions are tending to re-establish the balance between cattle-growing and grain-raising. Beef prices have been comparatively high, and are tending to become higher still. Butchers are warning the townfolk that they may expect to pay still more for their roasts this winter than last. With the improvement of advancing prices, it will not be strange if a good many Alberta farmers again turn their attention to the very near future in the desirability of carrying some good beef stock as a profitable means of marketing the straw and coarse grains which are so abundant.

WHY NOT CANADIAN GIFTS?

Canadian manufacturers are asking that in buying Christmas presents this year, Canadians should ask for articles of Canadian origin. If the request is complied with in any general way there will be a notably increased demand over that of former years for Canadian-made goods of many kinds. Canada is a heavy importer of Christmas goods, some kinds of which are sold in direct competition with similar articles made in Canadian factories. In England, it would be better national economy to give the business to the Canadian makers.

And why not make the Christmas gift something distinctly Canadian? That is, why not give things which are made in Canada, and are typical of Canadian life and activities, rather than things which come from some other country. Even the stately of their foreign origin? If curiosities are wanted they of course can most easily be found in importations from abroad—the farther the better. But why not turn to another, what gift could be more appropriate than one which by its materials, its pattern or its use, speaks its Canadian origin? It is entirely possible to import a little of the wholesome Canadian sentiment into our Christmas giving, with advantages to our own folk.

NOT SO BAD

Albertans who are inclined to think that they could get away with a little less frugality in the atmosphere may ponder with profit the reports which have been coming through of weather conditions in the Maritime provinces and New England States, and from some points nearer home. A week ago the vessels on Lake Superior had to run for shelter before a blizzard which blanketed Michigan and Minnesota with snow several feet deep. The Atlantic states have been compiling the list of fatalities and damage resulting from the while Quebec reports property losses from the heaviest rains ever known there.

At Edmonton we have had no conditions which caused or threatened either death or damage to property. The worst has been a fortnight of wet weather, culminating in a dip on Sunday evening to the lower levels. Our railways have been hindered, our street railways tied up, or our telegraph and telephone lines or mail service deranged. On the contrary, the New England States, and country have gone on without interference, and business in the city shops has been remarkably good. As usual, Albertans have not much to complain about on the score of weather.

MAKING A START

The paving by law passed by the city council, and to be submitted to the burgesses, provide for repaving 10th street and parts of 10th street and 9th street. They provide also for paving two blocks on 10th street, three blocks on 8th street, and two blocks on Macdonald drive.

The city's share of the cost is to be slightly over $100,000. For this we are to get only seven blocks of new paving. The balance has to go to resurfacing streets where the pavement has broken down, and where the wrong kind of paving was laid in the first place. Nobody can doubt the necessity of making these improvements.

That so heavy a proportion of the expenditure has to go to new paving done many years ago illustrates the handicap under which the city now labors in undertaking new work. There are other long stretches where relaying will be necessary, and there is the job of paving between the car tracks on Jasper west. These will use up heavy percentages of future appropriations, and accordingly cut down the amount that can go to improving streets not as yet paved.

There should be no doubt that the bylaws for this expenditure will carry. The sooner the replacement work is done the less it will cost, and there will be plenty left to attend to in future years. The new construction proposed is several years behind time, and the only regret is that council cannot find the way clear to do two or three times as much.

The important thing is that we make a start next summer on renewing some of our worn out paving, and a beginning as not extending, even to a moderate extent, the total of our paved streets.

If the program is not extensive, it is at least a definite break from the policy of continued inaction.

Absent

By EDGAR E. GUEST

New shoes aye, and every chaff
Has lost the charm it ought to wear
And every look
At which I look
Seems to my loneliness in share.

A strange thing a wistful eye
Doth see at times at its own sight
As it is gay.

The very way.
But, ah, he cannot here be right!

And there are lovely things within
Which we have hitherto long to win.
And calm is there
Where I have been
But, oh, I dread the going in!

Here is the spirit of the place,
From her comes every touch of grace.
When she's away
The empty rooms I hate to face.

Guns

By DR. FRANK CLEAVE

One of the most sensible means to abate the crime wave and the many killings that take place every community is to stop the sale of guns.

"Eliminate your pistols and revolvers and you will stop your emotional killings." This is the message of a play which has been produced by Jack Black, a playwright. It is a play which is a warning to the public.

The utmost prudence and caution should be exercised by the authorities in allowing any one to sell a gun of any kind.

A gun should be in the possession only of a person who is authorized to have it, and necessary, such as policemen and sheriffs.

The sale of pistols and revolvers and you will stop your emotional killings." This is the message of a play which has been produced by Jack Black, a playwright. It is a play which is a warning to the public.

In former times every gentleman had his own sword or dagger, and he was proud to show it off to his friends. But now it is a disgrace to be seen with one.

Of course, having lethal weapons would not prevent a man from being a good citizen, but it would help him. A revolver is a dangerous thing to have around a man's person.

Make it possible to get revolvers cheap and difficult to get them at all. Most of all, make it so that a man who has a gun must be a good citizen, and he will stop more crime than he can count.

This author stated was once a candidate for the office of mayor. He knows the inside of the killing business.

WANDERING KIDNEYS

Many persons come to me who have nearly worried themselves into the grave since some doctor told them that they had a "floating" or "wandering" kidney. There is usually little harm produced by misplacement of either one of the kidneys, but many are undoubtedly frightened into believing it is a serious condition.

The kidneys are supposed to be located slightly under the ribs on each side of the back, but years of experience as a diagnostician have convinced me that the right kidney is naturally located two or three inches lower, the space assigned to it by the anatomists. Out of thousands of cases examined, I found that to be the rule, except with those who are abnormally fat, in which case both kidneys are pushed out of their normal positions.

Of course, if either of the kidneys descends as far as the hip-bone, there may be a serious blocking of urine because of the pressure which carries the urine to the bladder. Surgical operations are usually advised for such cases and the kidney is anchored into what is considered its proper position. Such operations are wholly unnecessary.

If the patient is willing to devote some time and energy in systematically developing the muscles of the abdomen.

If either kidney is found to be very low, the proper treatment is to get to bed for two or three weeks keeping the hips slightly elevated and, while in this position, doing all of the different exercises, which will develop the abdominal muscles. It is a good plan to take a milk diet at this time, using as much as six cups of milk daily. This will keep the intestines filled and together with the fact that you are in a horizontal position, it will assist in pulling the kidney up to its normal position. I do not mind making this statement, for I have seen the milk diet in my own case, and I have seen it in the case of many others.

If the floating kidney patient is unable to get to bed, he should try to stay on a well-balanced diet and get as much exercise as possible. Although a wandering kidney can be raised by any kind of exercise, the best way to do it is by the patient taking all of the exercises possible to do while lying in bed. If the floating kidney is in bed, it will be raised by the weight of the body and the patient will not be back when he finally gets up, and the kidney will slowly slip back into its proper position.

Question: Mr. E. W. writes: "At machine I feel enough so that my stomach always feels indented, but I am very hungry. No matter how much I eat or how well I exercise, I feel hungry. I have a wandering kidney. Can you advise me on this?"

Answer: Try eating an extra amount of green vegetables, such as your meals; and see if this does not overcome your feeling of hunger. If this does not satisfy you, you may need a special diet. I can advise you on this.

Question: Mr. G. writes: "After getting a wandering kidney, I have a very bad taste in my mouth. I have a wandering kidney. Can you advise me on this?"

Answer: It is with me, but I have a wandering kidney. Can you advise me on this?"
